THE FIRST GAME.

MONTGOMERY PROFESSIONALS WIN IN A WALK.

A Combination of Errors Give the Leaguers an Overwhelming Victory.

Auburn's Varsity has played its first game of baseball and met with an overwhelming defeat. This was too bad; for the boys were so in hopes of putting up a creditable showing against the Senators, though let it be understood that the most sanguine had no hopes of winning out. Manager Joseph merely arranged the game so as to give his team an idea of how the game is played by men who make a profession of it, as well as for a financial benefit.

A prettier practice game was never put up by any team, than the one the boys gave before the game, and in the words of one of the spectators "they moved like clock work." Their practice was far superior to that of the Montgomery team. But much to Auburn's regret that beautiful practice could count nothing toward a victory.

When "play ball" was called by umpire Mahoney Auburn had the field and before the professionals were retired the unreasonable number of fourteen runs were chalked to their credit, and the game was irretrievably lost to Auburn.

In the story of the first inning lies the tale of the score. Aids who was in the box for Auburn was terribly wild at the opening of the game giving three men bases on balls and hitting a couple with pitched balls, this seemed to rattle the boys who were already somewhat nervous, and for a while most of them seemed to lose their heads entirely. The score of the first inning is not due to the fact that the Montgomery team gave Aids a seven drubbing, as some seem to think, not that at all, for not one single safe hit was gotten off him during that time; he was merely wild and perhaps a little nervous, as any amateur pitcher would be facing professional giants for the first time. The rest of the game, with the exception of the sixth inning when the boys went to pieces again, allowing the Senators to run up six more scores, was all that could be asked for. With the above exceptions the Auburn team put up a lovely game, one that the grand stand and bleachers appreciated as was evidenced by the continual applauding they gave.

After the first inning, with sure defeat staring them in the face, it is marvelous the way the men pulled together giving Montgomery goose eggs for the next two times;

Wilson in the meantime had crossed the plate for Auburn and things began to put on a brighter appearance. From this time on the team seemed to get down to work, and work they did, showing that they had the grit and nerve of baseball men, which taken along with the lesson the leaguers taught them will go far toward making Auburn a team of which she can well be proud.

Excluding Aids' wildness at times, he pitched a good game and by his work gives Auburn the assurance that for once she has a man who understands the art of twirling. He struck out seven of the Montgomery team, while her trio of pitchers all together only sent eight Auburn men direct from the bat to the bench. During the eight innings he was in the box, only ten hits were gotten off him, four of these being bunt hits while the others were singles. Pitcher Armstrong of the Montgomery team says that "Aids is swift enough for Southern League material."

Too much cannot be said of the ball Blankenship played. He was the life of the team, even under the most trying and provoking circumstances he was "all smiles." As a catcher he is all that could be asked for, he throws with unerring aim, not a single base was stolen off him in Saturday's game, every attempt along that line was nipped in the bud. He caught four adventurers at second and three at third. His playing was errorless; and base running seemed to be his forte.

Warner Lowe at second proved himself to be a "useful as well as ornamental" fixture, he covered the whole infield at times, and was always on his bag to receive Blank's orders to stop a runner. With the exception of one hard trial he played an errorless game. His batting and base running were superb.

Everything that went to Smith's lot was handled safely. The feature of the game was his double play, making a long run for a sky scraper, he brought it down safely and played to Pettus cutting off a runner who had ventured a little too far for his safety.

Pettus played his usual errorless game at first, and with four times at bat he made a batting average of 500 per cent. getting in two lovely hits during the game.

Joe Wilson, though credited with a couple of errors is excusable for them. He played the game at a disadvantage, having come out only a few evenings before and then playing with both a cripple foot and hand. Never-the-less he showed by the way he handled himself that he knows what a baseball is. His eye while at the bat never fails him; in Saturday's game he was three times up, presented with his base twice and got a lovely one in left field on the third round. He was the first man to make a circuit of the bases for Auburn.

Stewart at short did well considering the fact that this was his first game at that position. He tried for everything that passed his way and made several phenomenal stops, proving himself to be a plucky little player.

Foy covered left field and was always ready to receive anything that fell in his territory. He had the honor of making the only earned run. He played a great batting game, getting two lovely singles.

Captain Boyd at center did his usual work, capturing four flies. He makes a model captain and is exceedingly popular with his team. He says that "instead of the game demoralizing the men that it will be the making of a team, that they have received a lesson that will not be soon forgotten. Each man he says has pledged himself in the next few weeks to do such work as he has never done before, and to play hard ball."

An eye-opener was what the team needed, and that is exactly what they received in Saturday's game. It is to be hoped that it will prove a valuable lesson to them.

McGullick and Allen were substitutes, the latter going in Foy's field in the last inning, Foy taking Aids place in the box. Cadet Anderson and Wood held the responsible position of gate keepers.

The trip was an exceedingly enjoyable one for all, and though defeated the boys gained valuable experience by it.

Manager Joseph realized a neat little sum from the game, so Auburn didn't fare so badly after all.

Tulane Letter.

Orange & Blue,

Auburn, Ala.

Owing to the visitation of yellow fever with which our Southland was afflicted, the opening of Tulane was delayed until the 29th of November. The faculty deemed it advisable that, to make up for the time lost, the working week shall be increased by the addition of Saturday, which hitherto has been our most cherished holiday, being free from the restraint of the Sabbath.

Owing to the lateness of the season when college opened, it was impossible to put a foot-ball team in the field to represent Tulane. However, the inter-class league flourished and some very good and exciting games were played. Ninety-eight won first place with ninety-nine a close second.

With the advent of spring, interest in the great national game of baseball has revived. The inter-class league has already finished its schedule, ninety-nine winning first place. Now that the class games are over, a move has been started to get up a schedule of games between the fraternities. This plan, as far as we can see, will be very successful, and as there are eight fraternities represented at Tulane, the schedule will be well filled. The captain of the Varsity baseball squad is Mr. Ed. L. McGehee, Jr., and Mr. Louis A. Landry occupies the important position of Manager; Mr. Landry has already arranged for games with University of Alabama and is now considering offers from Auburn, Virginia, Baton Rouge, Sewanee and others. Judging from present prospects our baseball nine will be the strongest ever placed upon the diamond by Tulane and will make other teams hustle.

Our athletes have already begun training for the spring games which come off early in May. The games are given on our own campus. Our grandstand easily seats 2500 people and our quarter mile track is all that is to be desired. Our spring games have always been attended with pronounced success and the outlook for this year is as bright as ever.

Tennis at Tulane is represented by the Tulane Tennis Club and the Nineteen Hundred Tennis Club. Each club has a good membership and very enthusiastic support.

We have only one literary society, Glendy Burke. Its membership is large and splendid work is done. The Hall is in the third story of Gibson Hall, and is well and lavishly furnished. The Society meets every Saturday night and spirited debates on important questions of the day are held. The program outside of the debate, consists of an oration and a declamation. The meetings are often attended by outsiders, who invariably go away favorably impressed. This Society held their anniversary exercises this year on January 8th, and enjoyed a well merited success. At this exercise the medal for elocution was given to Mr. George Howe, of the Class of 1901, although he had worthy opponents in the persons of Messrs J. B. Monroe, '99, W. F. Black, '01, Alfred Jacoby, '98. The medal for debate went to Mr. Francis L. Kohlman, of the Class of 1899, who had foemen worthy of his steel in Messrs. H. S. Bodgar, '98, H. H. Chaffe, '98, Wm. B. Grant, '98. The oratorical medal was given to Mr. George H. Terribery, '98, who was worthily opposed by Messrs. D. H. Trepkanier, '99, and Wm. Crooks, '98. We are now preparing for the Gulf States Oratorical Contest.

The field of Journalism at Tulane is occupied by three publications, the "Olive and Blue," a weekly newspaper; the "Tulane Collegian," a bi-monthly of literary pretensions and the "Jambalaya," our annual.

At Tulane, the relations between faculty and students is one of deep respect and affection, on the one hand, and courteous friendliness on the other. Just recently the faculty and students have been drawn closer together in lamenting their joint loss of Ashley D. Hurt, professor of Greek, who passed away from us on the tenth of this month, a loss felt not only by Tulane but by the community at large.

In spite of the crippling blow dealt to us by Yellow Jack, the attendance at Tulane is about as large as it ever has been. The students are regulated by the honor system. Each class elects officers, President, Vice President and Secretary, every term and the officers of all the classes constitute the Academic Board. the President of the Senior Class being ex-officio President, the President of the Junior Class, Vice President, and the President of the Sophomore Class, Secretary. This Board tries all cases of dishonesty, disorder, or any thing else derogatory to the welfare of the College, reported to it, and the action taken by it is invariably supported by the Faculty.

The social side of the students is catered to by the German Club, and the Tulane Germans are looked upon by New Orleans society as not the least attractive features of the social season.

Knowing that this letter is for publication in your columns we have endeavored to make it as short and succinct as possible and wishing you all success in every line. We remain, Yours,

OLIVE AND BLUE.

Track Athletics.

Although nothing much has been said about the matter, it is understood that Manager Mitcham is quietly hustling around and is getting up material for a creditable team. He will commence the improvement of the running-track in a few days, a little grading and a few cinders being all that is required. He has not yet arranged his program for the regular field-day exercises on May 1st, but a relay race will be one of the most interesting features.

The number of representatives to be sent to the Southern Inter-Collegiate Meet in Atlanta, has not yet been definitely agreed upon, but will probably be few.

Harvey, Stokes and Van Ness will be sadly missed, each holding a championship record, and we will have hard work to uphold old Auburn's reputation. However, Mitcham's chances for winning the Shot and Hammer contests are excellent. while several fast sprinters are being quietly developed.

Glomerata Notes.

All groups and individuals pictures must be made by next Friday. Mr. Abbott will expect all who have not already done so to see him then without fail.

The Senior class is requested to pay their subscriptions to either Mr. Hare or Mr. McIntyre within the next few days.

Only one week more will be allowed for any contributions.

Don't fail to come out to the ice cream supper next Saturday evening on campus.

Dr. Phillips' Lecture.

By invitation of the Faculty, Dr. W. B. Phillips, Consulting Chemist for the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co., with head quarters in Birmingham, Ala., came down March 21, and gave two very interesting as well as instructive lectures to the students taking the Engineering and Chemical courses.

On Monday, he gave a general history of the manufacture of pig-iron in the United States, and comparing Alabama with the other iron states and the world, and her rapid growth in this great product. She is now manufacturing the raw material cheaper than any country of the world.

Tuesday afternoon, he gave another very instructive lecture on "The By-Products of Coal."

We are to be congratulated upon having such a man as Dr. Phillips to visit our institution and tell us so much about this great industry which we know so little of, and which promises to do so much in future years for the South.

The Southern Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association.

As is well known, this Association has now been in vigorous existence over three years, having been organized in Atlanta, December, 1894. Starting with only five colleges, it now has a membership of nineteen, Furman University (S. C.) and the University of Tennessee having recently been admitted. The Association bids fair to keep up its onward march, and it may not be long before every important college in this section of the South will join its ranks.

The purpose of the Association is to promote purity in college athletics throughout the South. It aims to do this not by harsh and overbearing rules, but by rules that are recognized by every honest sportsman as necessary to clean and wholesome sport. It is not a point against these rules that they are sometimes violated by colleges that are members of the Association, for in nearly every case the offenders have been punished. Tulane lost her standing for nearly a year through her football captain's playing a debarred man, but she was finally restored to her position by her manly conduct in the matter. Centre College (Ky.), which is not even a member of the Association, has been black-listed for over a year, and notwithstanding her loud talk, she could not get but one college in Kentucky to play football with her last fall. She had to go north of the Ohio River for nearly every one of her games. Besides these instance among the colleges, a number of individual players have been "laid over the coals."

The officials of the Association, we are satisfied, try to discharge their duties faithfully and impartially. They are especially pronounced against any kind of professionalism. They think that it is wrong to bring a man or men into an institution simply to play on a team, whether such are paid for their services or not. They do not represent the college, they are inattentive as a rule to their college duties, and their presence and example in the college body are not productive of good to study or athletics. Of course such men are brought into college as bona-fide students, and unless professionalism can be proved against them, it is difficult to prevent their playing. Fortunately many of the colleges of the Association have rules, passed by their faculties, which prohibit students from taking part in inter-collegiate contests when they are deficient in any of their studies. Such rules strike directly at the evil depicted above.

The trouble about the whole matter is that the undergraduate athletic conscience is blunted by the ever present demand of beating the other college. Everything must be sacrificed to the hope of success, and no money or pains must be spared to bring out a team that will defeat all opponents. All the best purposes of athletics are subordinated to the mad desire of winning all the games scheduled. A sport is not entered into for its own sake or for the sake of exercise, but merely for the purpose of getting ahead of some opponent. There is no other feature in the present condition of college athletics at the South that is more deplorable than this, and it is to be hoped that the students will wake up to the fact that the feature of athletics is seriously threatened. Unless definite improvement in this respect is made, there is no doubt that college authorities everywhere will take measures towards prohibiting inter-collegiate games entirely.

Y. M. C. A.

The State Convention met at Montgomery March 24 to 27th. It was pleasant, profitable, and good to be there. It was an inspiration to meet and converse with the Christian young men of Alabama. There were one hundred and twenty delegates present representing the college and town association in Alabama.

The reports made by the delegates show that the Association has by no means been idle during the last year. The spirit that seemed to control that meeting, the earnestness that seemed to accompany every word indicated in no uncertain way that, at least, some of the young men of Alabama are awake to the calls of duty. Without a doubt the clans of our God are gathering and by faith in His promises, and under the direction of His spirit they are going to do a great work in His name.

One of the most interesting features of the convention was the talks on Bible study by Mr. Scholl of Birmingham. "Any one of these talks was well worth the trip. If we could but be such students of the Bible as he held up to our view, we would indeed reach heights unknown and taste joys but rarely experienced by mankind. Another interesting speaker present was Mr. Williams of Richmond, Va. He gave utterance to what every man has felt in his noblest moments but few have been able to tell.

"More taffy and less epitaphy" has been ringing in our ears ever since we came back to Auburn and we have resolved to tell all our friends of the good that they have done. Right here would be a good place to say that Prof. Thach's address on "College Men" was another one of the most interesting and delightful features of the convention. But I cannot tell all that we heard, felt, and saw while we were away. We all came back feeling that Montgomery was a fine old place.

Western Football Rules.

Professor A. A. Stagg of Chicago University, and Professor A. P. Everett, of the University of Illinois, have just completed the revision of the football rules, at which they have been working for the past month at the request of the Western Football Association. There are many changes suggested, one of the most radical of which is the change in the method of scoring. The goal, after a touchdown, will count one, the drop kick four, the place kick three, and a safety two, touchdowns scoring four points as before. Seven men need not be kept in the line, but as a guard against roughness no man shall be permitted to lay his hands on an opponent before the ball is put into play. The side scored on will have the choice of kick-off. Other changes have also been considered, but these are the most important. Dr. Phillips' Lecture.

By invitation of the Faculty, Dr. W. B. Phillips, Consulting Chemist for the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co., with head quarters in Birmingham, Ala., came down March 21, and gave two very interesting as well as instructive lectures to the students taking the Engineering and Chemical courses.

On Monday, he gave a general history of the manufacture of pig-iron in the United States, and comparing Alabama with the other iron states and the world, and her rapid growth in this great product. She is now manufacturing the raw material cheaper than any country of the world.

Tuesday afternoon, he gave another very instructive lecture on "The By-Products of Coal."

We are to be congratulated upon having such a man as Dr. Phillips to visit our institution and tell us so much about this great industry which we know so little of, and which promises to do so much in future years for the South.

The Southern Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association.

As is well known, this Association has now been in vigorous existence over three years, having been organized in Atlanta, December, 1894. Starting with only five colleges, it now has a membership of nineteen, Furman University (S. C.) and the University of Tennessee having recently been admitted. The Association bids fair to keep up its onward march, and it may not be long before every important college in this section of the South will join its ranks.

The purpose of the Association is to promote purity in college athletics throughout the South. It aims to do this not by harsh and overbearing rules, but by rules that are recognized by every honest sportsman as necessary to clean and wholesome sport. It is not a point against these rules that they are sometimes violated by colleges that are members of the Association, for in nearly every case the offenders have been punished. Tulane lost her standing for nearly a year through her football captain's playing a debarred man, but she was finally restored to her position by her manly conduct in the matter. Centre College (Ky.), which is not even a member of the Association, has been black-listed for over a year, and notwithstanding her loud talk, she could not get but one college in Kentucky to play football with her last fall. She had to go north of the Ohio River for nearly every one of her games. Besides these instances among the colleges, a number of individual players have been "laid over the coals."

The officials of the Association, we are satisfied, try to discharge their duties faithfully and impartially. They are especially pronounced against any kind of professionalism. They think that it is wrong to bring a man or men into an institution simply to play on a team, whether such are paid for their services or not. They do not represent the college, they are inattentive as a rule to their college duties, and their presence and example in the college body are not productive of good to study or athletics. Of course such men are brought into college as bona-fide students, and unless professionalism can be proved against them, it is difficult to prevent their playing. Fortunately many of the colleges of the Association have rules, passed by their faculties, which prohibit students from taking part in inter-collegiate contests when they are deficient in any of their studies. Such rules strike directly at the evil depicted above.

The trouble about the whole matter is that the undergraduate athletic conscience is blunted by the ever present demand of beating the other college. Everything must be sacrificed to the hope of success, and no money or pains must be spared to bring out a team that will defeat all opponents. All the best purposes of athletics are subordinated to the mad desire of winning all the games scheduled. A sport is not entered into for its own sake or for the sake of exercise, but merely for the purpose of getting ahead of some opponent. There is no other feature in the present condition of college athletics at the South that is more deplorable than this, and it is to be hoped that the students will wake up to the fact that the feature of athletics is seriously threatened. Unless definite improvement in this respect is made, there is no doubt that college authorities everywhere will take measures towards prohibiting inter-collegiate games entirely.

Y. M. C. A.

The State Convention met at Montgomery March 24 to 27th. It was pleasant, profitable, and good to be there. It was an inspiration to meet and converse with the Christian young men of Alabama. There were one hundred and twenty delegates present representing the college and town association in Alabama.

The reports made by the delegates show that the Association has by no means been idle during the last year. The spirit that seemed to control that meeting, the earnestness that seemed to accompany every word indicated in no uncertain way that, at least, some of the young men of Alabama are awake to the calls of duty. Without a doubt the clans of our God are gathering and by faith in His promises, and under the direction of His spirit they are going to do a great work in His name.

One of the most interesting features of the convention was the talks on Bible study by Mr. Scholl of Birmingham. Any one of these talks was well worth the trip. If we could but be such students of the Bible as he held up to our view, we would indeed reach heights unknown and taste joys but rarely experienced by mankind. Another interesting speaker present was Mr. Williams of Richmond, Va. He gave utterance to what every man has felt in his noblest moments but few have been able to tell.

"More tally and less epitaphy" has been ringing in our ears ever since we came back to Auburn and we have resolved to tell all our friends of the good that they have done. Right here would be a good place to say that Prof. Thach's address on "College Men" was another one of the most interesting and delightful features of the convention. But I cannot tell all that we heard, felt, and saw while we were away. We all came back feeling that Montgomery was a fine old place.

Western Football Rules.

Professor A. A. Stagg of Chicago University, and Professor A. P. Everett, of the University of Illinois, have just completed the revision of the football rules, at which they have been working for the past month at the request of the Western Football Association. There are many changes suggested, one of the most radical of which is the change in the method of scoring. The goal, after a touchdown, will count one, the drop kick four,

The side scored on will have the choice of kick-off. Other changes have also been considered, but these are the most important. Ice cream and cake on the campus next Saturday evening from 8 to 11.

We understand that the athletic association is getting everything in readiness to have as interesting a field day in May 1st as has been held in former years.

Cadet D. F. Boyd late of the Battleship Maine, has been in Auburn on leave for several days, received orders to report to the flag ship New York now at Key West. In the coming unpleasantness we expect to hear great things of Rex and feel sure that our expectations will be fully realized

Mr. Edwin Boyce Joseph, '97, our business manager, having been offered the position of assistant Meat Inspector for the city of Montgomery, left Thursday to enter upon his new duties. While rejoicing over his good fortune, it is with regret that we see him go. His departure leaves vacancies in the Chemical department, on the Staff of the Orange and Blue and in the management of the Baseball Team, which will be indeed impossible to fill with a more energetic or enthusiastic worker.

Conversation Club

The N. T. Lupton Conversation Club met at the residence of Mrs. B. A. Wills last Thursday evening. The opening piece—an instrumental trio by Miss Ella Lupton and Messrs. Boyd and Fullan was very well received as was also a humorous reading by Dr. Charles H. Ross, delivered in his inimitable style. Prof. A. F. McKissick read a very interesting paper on Edison and other great electricians which was greatly enjoyed by the large audience. Prof. McKissick showed himself to be perfectly familiar with his subject and handled it in a masterly and instructive way.

The next meeting will be at the residence of Dr. Cary, Tuesday evening April 12th, Dr. Cary leading on "Hall Caine."

Tennis Tournament.

About twenty of our most enthusiastic tennis players of both clubs have arranged for a tournament during the next few weeks for the college championship, the preliminaries beginning last Saturday. Interest in this deservedly popular sport is greatly on the increase here and there is no reason why we should not send a winning team to both Athens and Montgomery. Every afternoon the courts on the campus are occupied and all are doing hard work in preparation for the college tournament.

Ice Cream.

Will be served by the ladies of Auburn Saturday evening April 16 on the campus of the Chemical Laboratory the entire proceeds to go to the Glomerata.

Let everybody come and spend an enjoyable evening and also feast the inner man on delightful cream and cake. Tickets may be had from any of the Glomerata Board. Show your college spirit and come out with your best girl.

The following students from the Sophomore Class have been selected to contest on May 1, for a gold medal given by the faculty:

E. Bukofzer, W. C. Dowdell, E. H. Foy, J. E. Foy, J. O. Gogans, J. P. Jones, W. A. Jordan, W. L. Neill, M. F. Owens, J. R. Rutland, J. W. Shuff, Chas. White.

Auburn is devoting most of her attention to baseball. The team will be coached by Bailey who had them in charge last year, and present indications are very favorable. Last year Auburn made a fairly good showing in track athletics, and there was every reason to hope for continued improvement, but this year's team is likely to be weak. Several of the men on last year's team did not return and as no phenoms appeared to take their places, Auburn is somewhat discouraged and is hardly going into this branch of athletics with much spirit.—Nashville Student.

Each of us must work out his own ideal and live in earnest for that. In religion, in art, in science, in literature, in all occupations and in everything we do, each one must feel, know and believe in his own ideal, and with all the power of inspiration, struggle to realize it with mind, heart and soul.

Work is not an end in itself, and so education is but a means to an end; and that end, the freeing of the immortal mind of man by discipline controlling and purifying it, and leading it ever toward perfection. If we keep our ideals before us in all the ordinary occupations and duties of life, we will ennoble and glorify them, and raise both them and ourselves to a higher plane.

When this true idea of education is practically grasped by our schools and colleges there will be great growth towards ideal manhood and womanhood. It is this our educators need to embody in their teaching.—Orator.

The next meeting will be at the residence of Dr. Cary, Tuesday evening April 12th, Dr. Cary leading on "Hill Caine."

Tennis Tournament.

About twenty of our most enthusiastic tennis players of both clubs have arranged for a tournament during the next few weeks for the college championship, the preliminaries beginning last Saturday. Interest in this deservedly popular sport is greatly on the increase here and there is no reason why we should not send a winning team to both Athens and Montgomery. Every afternoon the courts on the campus are occupied and all are doing hard work in preparation for the college tournament.

Ice Cream.

Will be served by the ladies of Auburn Saturday evening April 16 on the campus of the Chemical Laboratory the entire proceeds to go to the Glomerata.

Let everybody come and spend an enjoyable evening and also feast the inner man on delightful cream and cake. Tickets may be had from any of the Glomerata Board. Show your college spirit and come out with your best girl.

Sophomore Declamation.

The following students from the Sophomore Class have been selected to contest on May 1, for a gold medal given by the faculty:

E. Bukofzer, W. C. Dowdell, E. H. Foy, J. E. Foy, J. O. Gogans, J. P. Jones, W. A. Jordan, W. L. Neill, M. F. Owens, J. R. Rutland, J. W. Shuff, Chas. White.

Auburn is devoting most of her attention to baseball. The team will be coached by Bailey who had them in charge last year, and present indications are very favorable. Last year Auburn made a fairly good showing in track athletics, and there was every reason to hope for continued improvement, but this year's team is likely to be weak. Several of the men on last year's team did not return and as no phenoms appeared to take their places, Auburn is somewhat discouraged and is hardly going into this branch of athletics with much spirit.—Nashville Student.

President McKinley has accepted the invitation to deliver the commencement address at Iowa College next June.

Each of us must work out his own ideal and live in earnest for that. In religion, in art, in science, in literature, in all occupations and in everything we do, each one must feel, know and believe in his own ideal, and with all the power of inspiration, struggle to realize it with mind, heart and soul.

Work is not an end in itself, and so education is but a means to an end; and that end, the freeing of the immortal mind of man by discipline controlling and purifying it, and leading it ever toward perfection. If we keep our ideals before us in all the ordinary occupations and duties of life, we will ennoble and glorify them, and raise both them and ourselves to a higher plane.

When this true idea of education is practically grasped by our schools and colleges there will be great growth towards ideal manhood and womanhood. It is this our educators need to embody in their teaching.—Orator.

Concerning Examinations.

Noting in some of the exchanges that come to our table, that a similar movement is being made at our sister colleges, we think that it is a convenient elevator to lift him fitting time to agitate the question of doing away with examinations in our own institution.

In looking at the matter, we encounter the question, Why are they beneficial? About the only answer one receives to this question is that they enable a professor to judge of a student's knowledge of the subject which he is pursuing. Now to all who are acquainted with a boy's "boning" capacity, the fallacy of this theory is plainly evident. There are many students in college right now who do not presume to even read over many of their subjects until just before examination, when, after getting necessary notes and "pointers" from their more industrious brothers, they sit up all night and manage to stow away temporarily enough knowledge of the subject to often get excellent grades. Now, is this sort of learning beneficial? Is this the kind that is assimilated and ready for use at any future time? Is the mental structure of the brain materially strengthened or the reasoning faculties developed? No, most emphatically no, for as physiology teaches us that imperfect digestion invariably results from large quantities of food hurriedly swallowed, so psychology relates the same principle as to our organs of thought.

Now, if a student can temporarily "cram" the tissues of his brain and succeeds in passing a successful examination, is this a fair test of his knowledge, and by knowledge we mean thorough grasp and comprehension.

It is plainly evident then, that examinations not only fail to accomplish the purpose intended, but, in addition are partial or one-sided in their action.

It is argued that if a man is a good student and thoroughly prepares for his daily recitations, no extra work will be required in preparing for a term examination. But no statement is more erroneous than this, as every first-honor man in college will tell you, because of the number of "catch" questions on unimportant, obscure topics that are given in nearly all of our examinations. Thus it is that the ambitious student has to really exert more effort than his less aspiring class-mate, for although he may be well informed on the essential, vital points of a subject, yet he must sit up all the night before the examination and search out the little things to which scarcely no attention was paid in recitation, but which are so popular on the mimeographed question list.

To sum up, term examinations are institutions that jeopardize the good recitation grades of a hard working student, and necessitate a trying mental and physical ordeal in order to keep from being deprived of what he has already earned, having everything to lose and nothing to gain. On the other hand, for the lagging student they are from the depths of failure to a possible pass, having everything to gain and nothing to lose.

Then why cannot the system be amended so as to act impartially and also serve as a stimulant for harder work during the term. That is, adopt a certain average, say eighty-five or ninety per cent. and all students whose daily grade equal or exceeds this, will be exempt from term examinations, all others being required to stand.

If this plan was adopted I believe that the amount of studying done by the different individuals would be trebly increased; their knowledge or learning would be of the highest, most permanent type, as the pernicious system of "cramming" would not be depended upon; the severe nervous strain, incident to examinations, could be avoided by honest application to study during the term; and, in conclusion the faculty would not only have the satisfaction of having excellent recitations, but would be relieved of a large part of the labor of grading papers, etc., which pertains to examinations.

ATHENS, GA.,
April 5th, 1898.

Dear Sir:—I beg to inform you that the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, Tenn., and Furman University, Greenville, S. C., have been admitted to membership in this Association.

The meeting of the Football Rules Committee has been postponed to Friday, April 15th., and the place of meeting from Birmingham, Ala., to the University of the South, Sewanee Tenn.

The Handbook of the Association will be issued later than usual this year, because it is to contain the new Football Rules. It will appear immediately after the meeting of the Rules Committee.

I desire to call your attention to the fact that the expenses incurred in the printing of the Handbook will be much lessened if there is much space taken up by advertisements. The fact that the Handbook is to contain both the new Track and Football Rules will make it a valuable local advertising medium. Your co-operation in the securing of advertisements is earnestly requested. Price for full page $5.00, for half page $3.00. All advertisements must be in not later than April the 20th.

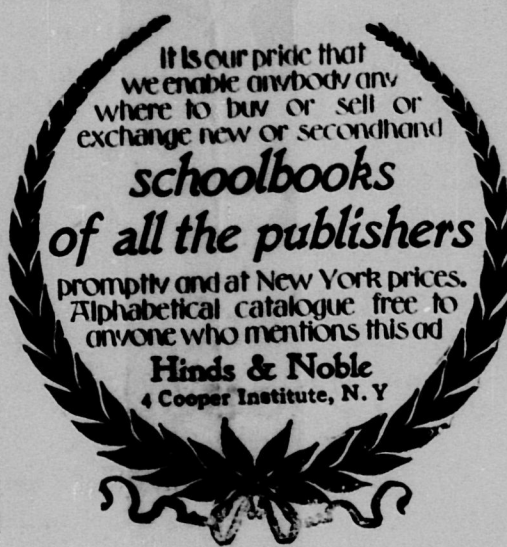

President Dudley has appointed the following Games Committee for 1898. Chas. H. Herty, University of Georgia, Chairman, Paul M. Jones, Vanderbilt University, J. B. Wood, Georgia School of Technology.

This Committee met in Atlanta on March 12th. At this meeting it was decided to hold the trial heats on Friday, May 20th, and the finals on Saturday, May 21st. The Committee decided on the same twelve events, and the same kinds of medals as in the last annual Field Meeting.

Entry blanks together with further information concerning the Meet will be mailed you.

Very Sincerely,
CHAS. H. HERTY,
Secretary.

The receipts of the Princeton football season amounted to $17,380, the disbursements to $15,570, coaching expenses were $2,472, training table $3,336 and athletic supplies $1,323.
